

Greetings!

After a cold spring, Cleveland has finally reached summer with some much needed high temperatures. With great weather for ball games, parades and festivals, this season will sure be an exciting one!

In Greater Cleveland, philanthropy is on the rise. One of our most prominent non-profits is The Cleveland Foundation, which aims to enhance the lives of residents in many forms of action. Through donations and volunteers, the Foundation serves the area by providing scholarships, assigning leadership for community issues, and work towards improvement through grant making. Each year endowments are increasing, and at the start of 2018 it was announced that total assets rose to $2.5 billion! At this rate, more and more community needs will be addressed. Opportunities such as these lead to the success of residents and is just another step forward for our economic development. Keep it up Cleveland!

Northeast Ohio is the proud home home to 24 four-year universities. Over the years, these colleges have impacted our community with their innovation efforts. Most recently, Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland State, and Kent State have shown great involvement in the revitalization of the city.

On May 25th, we had an early Memorial Day celebration. It's a day when we honor the men and women who have passed while serving in the United States military. Unofficially, this special day is also considered by many as the beginning of summer.

Kent State and Cleveland State have begun a partnership, in which they promote the collaboration of students. The hope is that these collaborations of innovation discussions and projects will lead to new products, ones that will be introduced to the Northeast Ohio market! The increased attention to the success of our students is leading to more employment in Cleveland.

In this respect, of course, family and friends get together to remember our troops with cookouts, parades, and other gatherings. That's exactly what Bay Corp did! We had our annual Memorial Day cookout with the whole company. There's nothing like coming together to appreciate those who have fought for our freedom!

These universities' efforts go even further than just employment, though. As an example, this past year Case Western has worked with over 900 community outreach programs and served Cleveland with roughly 600,000 volunteer hours. With the achievements from our area's students and alumni, Northeast Ohio is on the rise!

In other Northeast Ohio news...

Cavs get swept in NBA finals

Sometimes one game makes all the difference. The highly favored Golden State Warriors had their backs against the wall in the final minutes of regulation time in game 1 and then a questionable blocking call against LeBron James and a "brain fart" by J.R. Smith changed the course of the game.

It's important to stay in shape, and this beautiful weather makes that a lot easier! But, we still love using our treadmills in the office. Here's Brian Forgach, Director of Sales, exercising and still getting work done!

Indians leading the AL Central

The Cleveland Indians record stands at 44 wins and 35 losses, which is good for a 8 1/2 game lead in the American League Central Division. The Tribe has been playing its best baseball of the season this past month and is seemingly putting it all together.

When it comes to the Browns, no news is good news

All NFL teams are enjoying their summer break before pre-season practice starts in July. So, when there is a lull in professional football and your team doesn't make the news headlines then that is actually a good thing!
